Attai Chen
Cross Breeding
 01.02.14-22.03.14

'This work is made of captured and combined scraps of ideas throughout cross-breeding and assembling different materials, associations, moods, images and memories. In a sense, it is being inside an endless post-post-modernistic time, existing in an ever changing reality that intertwines into fantasy, mixture of cultures and ideas creating a "hybrid" kind of elusive reality. Is it serious or nonsensical? A composition of words and images that ostensibly do not make sense at all, suddenly they tell a tale.'

Carina Chitsaz-Shoshtary
Karma Chroma
 01.02.14-22.03.14

'The starting point for all the pieces of this series is colour: Paint itself is the main material and colour the most significant visual component. I collect thick colour sheets from a graffiti wall in Munich. By dividing the material into fine layers, fragments of former graffiti appear again- revealing surfaces that resemble ancient frescoes. Here I find all the colour compositions, gradations and chroma I could picture only in my most fertile imagination. In this abundance of colour I discover the eruption of a volcano or the dark and light contours of a mountain chain in the sunrise. The forms are emerging from these images.'

Jie Sun
Camouflage
 01.02.14-22.03.14

'The unity of nature and human has been the fundamental principle of Chinese culture and philosophy since ancient China (770-476 BC). This is the only way to achieve a truly "Saint", the harmony and combination of the nature (universe, society, the others) and human beings( soul, mental/physical self). Camouflage is my visual translation of this concern -being two at the same time being one, into contemporary jewellery creation.'
